

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A seal is mounted in a groove around an orifice of a measuring chamber inserted in an insertion direction into a tank to form a fluid meter. The seal comprises a radially elastic torus having a shape corresponding to that of the orifice and an arrangement on at least one of its sides substantially parallel to the insertion direction for immobilizing it in a direction opposite the insertion direction.